Cyberport Career Fair 2015: A Gateway to a Career in IT
Over 200 jobs and internship opportunities available

Hong Kong – 9 March, 2015 – As the advocate to nurture the next generation of IT talents, Hong Kong Cyberport Management Company Limited (Cyberport) will connect Hong Kong talents with over 40 IT companies to offer more than 200 exciting job opportunities in Hong Kong and Mainland China at the "Cyberport Career Fair 2015" on 14 March at Cyberport.

As Hong Kong's Information and Communications Technology (ICT) industry and start-up scene continue to flourish, Cyberport recognises the growing demand for local young talents in the industry and is committed to bringing initiatives to empower them for a bright career, which will push forward the development of the industry.

"The 'Cyberport Career Fair 2015' is the largest career fair we have ever organised to inspire participants in realising their potentials and career goals," said Mr. Herman Lam, CEO of Cyberport. "To accelerate the growth of the ICT ecosystem, what Hong Kong needs is a constant stream of young, creative minds to join the industry and help capture the vast opportunities in the market. The Cyberport Career Fair creates the platform for talents and companies to engage and explore the possibilities. The wide diversity of supporting companies we have at this Fair will allow future ICT leaders to better understand the different roles and career paths that they can pursue."

Industry Partners Scouting for Bright IT Talents
At the Fair, participants will have an opportunity to meet with recruiters from Cyberport tenants, including over 40 well-established IT companies and successful start-ups, offering entry and mid-level job opportunities that range from software engineering, game and mobile apps development, User Experience (UX) and User Interface (UI) design, to marketing and advertising, administration and customer service, business development among others.

"Despite the war for talent, we have successfully recruited high-calibre talents in the past via Cyberport. Some of them have even become our partners for our business expansion in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Shanghai," said Timothy Yu, Founder of an e-Learning start-up Appedu who will participate in the Fair. "We are grateful for the support from Cyberport in organising the Career Fair for the wider community to motivate the young generations to build up their profession in the tech industry. We do need talents to help."

Comprehensive Programmes for Recruiters and Job Seekers
In addition, participants can learn the first-hand industry career advice from 6waves and Frenzoo, successful start-ups like BeyondZ Company Limited, Innopage Limited and Casetify Hong Kong. A group of prominent industry professionals will also be there, sharing their thoughts on entrepreneurship, recruitment criteria and career advice.

Aside from learning about the various career options, tertiary students can also explore the internship opportunities offered by Cyberport. The company is offering the "e+startup" and "eHealth Record" internship programmes in Hong Kong, as well as the "Hong Kong-Shanghai" and "Hong Kong-Fuzhou NetDragon" ICT internship programmes in Mainland China. For participants who want to experience the US dynamic working culture, they can also learn more about the "Cyberport Hong Kong–Silicon Valley" ICT internship programme.

"The synergy and effort demonstrated by members of the Cyberport community can inspire job seekers to unleash their potential and better plan their careers in the ICT field," Lam added. "We are anticipating that the 'Cyberport Career Fair 2015' and our series of activities will become the key driving force for our ICT industry."
